

NOTES ON EDUCATION.

Two colored schools which will have colored teachers are to be established in Baltimore in January.

Cleveland has a school attendance of 18,000, and 441 teachers. All but thirty-three of these teachers are women.

The expenditures of the industrial schools of Great Britain last year reached the sum of $1,200,000.

The Spanish school authorities have made instruction in the metric system of weights and measures obligatory in their schools.

The French Minister of War has ordered a collection of patriotic military stories to be compiled for the use of the primary schools.

It has been proposed to abolish corporal punishment in the Memphis public schools, and the question is to be considered at the next meeting of the School Board.

At a recent teachers' meeting in Massachusetts it was explained that a teacher has no legal right to keep a child in school after the hours prescribed by the local committee.

A colored man living in Philadelphia, an owner of property and a taxpayer for twenty-five years, is unable to get his children into the public schools on account of their color. The City Board of Education, after much discussion of the matter, has ordered that it should be investigated further.

The free night schools of Cincinnati are reported to be failures. The attendance of pupils cannot be maintained, and those who do go are not enthusiastic in their work. The causes of the failure are said to be the conducting of the schools after the pattern of the day schools, and the employment of incompetent teachers.

The Egyptian Khedive has ordered the establishment at Khartoum of a model school for young pupils, who, after five years' study, conductors directed into all the superior schools of Egypt, and a special class will exist for the creation of accountants, translators and economists. This model school is to be opened in May next, and will be adapted for one hundred and fifty scholars. The Khedive decries all the expense.

There is no wise and practical man in the country who will not echo these words from The Memphis Appeal: "The schools should teach integrity with grammar, truth with arithmetic. Children are made to speak several languages but are never taught to speak the language of truth. They are made to understand chemistry, but are never taught to analyze the awful chemistry of a lie. What our country most needs is incorruptible integrity, and what we want in the school-room and in the family circle, is not more brute culture, but more heart culture."

An English writer says that the reason that science is not more profitably studied in schools is that the subject is frequently intrusted to men who have not been trained for their work as classical masters have been trained for theirs. Science must be taught not so much by means of text-books as by means of direct contact with the objects and forces which it undertakes to explain. And the pupil must not always be told what he is to observe and what conclusions he is to draw from given premises. The function of the teacher should rather be to put him on the track by which he will be led to accurate results by his own efforts.

President Buchanan, of the University of Vermont, said at a teacher's meeting the other day, that "the failure in mastering mathematics is usually found to be a moral rather than a mental difficulty. When a school gets sluggish in intellectual forces, investigation will show that the trouble is a moral one, some bad boy, some vitiating literature, some bad influences, or other bad conditions, good references can be given."
